Hitchcock Moved to Tackle; Bobcats Ready for Opener

Coach Hammons Makes Last-Minute Survey of Hope Football Squad

HAMBURG IS FIRST

Camden and Fordyee to Follow Here on Successive Fridays

With the opening game of the season scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday at the local field, Coach Foy H. Hammons made a last-minute survey of his Hope High School football material Monday.

The Bobcats will face Hamburg Friday night with a reorganized squad having 10 lettermen as its nucleus. The Hamburg game will be a real test for the locals, according to Coach Hammons. The Ashley county high school has one of the strongest squads in southeast Arkansas, a consolidated school which employs 15 buses to bring in students from surrounding communities, and where the football spirit is keen and sustained. Friday's game will also be the season's first for Hamburg.

Coach Hammons has two good ends in Anderson and Kennedy, both of whom stand 6 feet 1 inch and weight about 175. They are good defensive players, with a particular talent for sagging forward passes.

The coach has shifted one guard to tackle position, Hitchcock, a 185-pound player. The other tackle will be Stone, an 180-pound veteran from last year.

At guard are Owens and Richardson, both lettermen, rather light, at 150.

Holly will get the center post. At 150, he has plenty of experience from last year's team. Another man likely to see plenty of service in the coach's opinion is Seest, a new recruit from a well known football family.

At quarterback will be the veteran Pete Brown.

In the backfield are: Payne, Harper, Stroud, Spears.

Among the new men mentioned prominently by the coach are: Stone, Ramsey, Hamilton, Reece and England.

Immediately following the Hamburg game the Bobcats will jump into the toughest opposition in the state: The Camden game here Friday, September 28; and the Fordyee game, also here, on Friday, October 5.

New High Record Monday as Hope's City Schools Open

High School Shows Total of 467—Against 324 a Year Ago

STUDENT ASSEMBLY

Negro Schools Also Show Enrollment Greater Than in 1933

Hope's public schools opened the 1934-35 school year Monday with students reporting for classes in all grades.

Hope High School showed a record new total enrollment, with 467 for the first day, against 324 at the end of the first month a year ago.

Grade school registration, as of Friday, were: Paisley 190; Oglebay 154; Brookwood 217; according to Miss Mabel Henry, city superintendent.

The Rev. Wallace R. Rogers addressed the assembly. Glen Durham chairman of the strike committee, issued a ultimatum Monday that if the strike was not settled this week all the remaining divisions of the industry would be called out.

Martial law was proclaimed in Georgia by Governor Talmadge who announced that the law would be in effect all over Georgia wherever there are disorders and the local authorities can not handle the situation.

Wholesale arrests of pickets marked the strike scene at Newnan, Ga.

Strike May Spread

WASHINGTON.—(P)—An attempt to break the great textile strike by opening picket-closed mills Monday night when an automobile in which he was riding went into a ditch near the Hope airport.

The car overturned twice, pinning Howard beneath it. He was dead when the wrecked machine was lifted off him.

Ruel Butler, well known Hope youth and a senior at the University of Arkansas, was riding with Howard, but was thrown clear of the car and escaped injury.

Traveling Fast

Too much speed and a blow out on one of the front tires was blamed for the tragedy.

The car was owned by Howard.

School chums at the University, the couple left Fayetteville Sunday morning and were en route to Hope where Howard was to have obtained employment.

They had nearly reached their destination when tragedy overtook them.

Tire Blows Out

Butler said he had warned his companion of the curve, and the railroad crossing ahead. Howard was slowing down when the tire blew out. He apparently lost control, the car overturning twice as it went into the ditch.

Howard was graduated from the Engineer School of the University of Arkansas, having obtained a master's degree in 1932.

While a student in Hope High School, Butler was a stellar football player. During his senior year he was captain of the football team here.

Surviving Howard are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Howard, his widow, and a sister and brother, all of Fayetteville.

The body will be sent to Fayetteville for burial.

BULETTIN

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Testimony that the United States Department of Commerce aided in recruiting and the formation of a military air school for the Canton (China) government was laid before the senate munitions committee Monday.

To date 74,529 head of livestock have been bought from 20,210 producers in 33 counties of the emergency drought area in Arkansas, Mr. Reid said, and it is estimated that $70,000 has been spent by the government in this state.

An initial quota of 45,000 head of livestock was assigned to Arkansas, and a supplementary quota of 3,000 head per day for shipment to terminal slaughter point outside the state was assigned, but within a few days this was reduced to 2,000 head daily and then to 1,000. Saturday's action of national drought relief authorities arrests the program of cattle buying which has been organized in Arkansas by co-operating officials of the Agricultural Extension Service, the Bureau of Animal Industry and the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

An urgent request for an additional quota of 175,000 head of livestock was made by Mr. Reid immediately after receipt of notice to discontinue cattle buying. He expressed belief that Argentina's investigations are expected to clear officials of the army,

navy and government of all guilt, and

probably sharply criticize the manner

in which the names were made public in Washington.

The Argentine investigations are expected to clear officials of the army,

navy and government of all guilt, and

probably sharply criticize the manner

in which the names were made public in Washington.

"In an atmosphere of scandal, the simple mention of a name, although not given condemnable attributes, makes it assume doubtful character in the mind of the majority, who judge from impressions," commented the newspaper La Nacion.

The results of the navy investigation were made public Saturday night by Capt. Eleazar Vida, minister of marine. There were 21 closely-typewritten pages detailing the navy's purchases of arms and airplanes, and the investigating commission found no basis for criticism of Argentine officers.

"The minister of marine, with legitimate pride, assumes responsibility for the reprobates' conduct as officials so unjustly deformed by declarations of sellers of arms who appeared before the United States Senate investigating committee," said Vida in a preface to the report.

Meanwhile, Germany held that her

This position was outlined in her recent reply to the European powers in which she refused to agree to the Football May Spread Infections of the Skin.

With opening of the football season, boys will begin in increasing numbers to suffer from the common types of injury that are associated with football training and football practice.

There are all sorts of funny superstitions connected with training. For a while it was believed that soaking the skin in salt water or in other solutions would harden it and prevent rubbing and similar injuries.

Actually these methods have not been found to be of any value. Instead, they help to spread infections of the skin, which are particularly serious for football players and frequently are the bone of training quarters.

Wearing of the same clothing by different players, including particularly the mixing of headgear, will result in carrying infections of the skin from one player to another. Leather football helmets may be sterilized by sulfur fumes.

Infections of the skin with pus-forming organisms should be treated by doctors, who usually apply antiseptic substances that bring these infections under control.

Most prevalent type of skin infection among football players is ringworm, of the type that causes so-called athlete's foot. This, however, will affect not only the feet, but also the groin and other parts of the body, when clothing is interchanged or improperly cleaned.

The feet may be bathed regularly in solutions containing one-half per cent of sodium hypochlorite, new widely used in locker rooms of gymnasiums and golf clubs. The ringworm of the groin may be controlled by seeing to it that the supporters are washed every day.

White underclothing may be worn under the supporter and antiseptic mercury ointments may be put on the skin to control the infection.

Special care should be given to towels used in locker rooms. Towels should never be put on the floor while the athlete bathes and then used on the body.

Towels put on the floor in this way will pick up ringworm infection and then transfer it to various parts of the body.

Ringworm infection spreads mostly in the presence of moisture. Athletes, and others as well, should make sure that their feet and socks are dry before the socks and shoes are put on.

Stolidity Called Uninteresting.

"A girl can have too much poise," says Leo Aarons, famous camera artist, whose specialty is making photographs that really tell a story. And that, to women who have been struggling to gain poise, is a pretty revolutionary piece of news.

However, the man upon whom advertisers call to make pictures that express various human emotions (Mr. Aarons doesn't go in for photographs of pretty girls, seated in automobiles, doing nothing) was willing to clarify his ideas.

"Girls have a great tendency these days to control their emotions and facial expressions," Mr. Aarons continued. "It makes them stereotyped. Goodness knows, expressions of pure emotion are fleeting enough anyway and unless a woman allows herself to make the most of what little her face can register, she is losing an opportunity to be a definite personality."

Register for Fractions of Second. Mr. Aarons, to prove what he means when he asserts emotions only fit across a face, has, after long years of experience with various models, made up what he calls a 100% accurate chart that tells just how long an emotion is registered.

For instance, there's fear. No matter how scared you are, you'll look actually scared for only a tenth of a second.

Sorrow, regardless of how deeply you suffer, registers in the face no longer than one second. The same is true of anger, real affection and curiosity. Joy and terror show up plainly for a twenty-fifth of a second, while fury and fright are evident one two-hundredths of a second.

These figures show just how fleeting sincere facial expressions are. From them anyone can figure out for

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

IT was a burning morning. During the night the water carts had sprinkled the dusty streets and for a brief space during the early hours freshness persisted. By half past nine the heat was unbearable. The sky seemed a copper bowl inverted over the face of the earth.

Nothing, however, could keep the crowds from the sale counters at Lucy's. They pressed in—women in thin silks; women in cheap cottons, the seams straining under their bulging arms; women with expensive handbags and clean gloves; women with neither and with parcels wrapped in shiny paper, tied with thin, unreliable strings. Boots hated them all to day with a deadly hatred. It was agony to be courteous, to force interest into one's dying tones.

Would the morning never end? The humid air was like a tangible thing, pressing against her chest, stifling her. Once a girl fainted, down a crowded aisle, and the other clerks peered at each other with harried eyes, as a space was cleared for the sufferer's passing.

Boots saw the hands of her watch crawl around to her lunch period with a passionate sensation of gratitude. She would have feed tea . . . she would bathe her face and hands . . .

As she went to her locker the head of the department beckoned to her from the doorway of a glassed and partitioned cubicle. Miss Houghton looked stern, but then that was her habitual expression. Boots was conscious of a lift of apprehension in her heart.

"Someone is calling you on the telephone, Mrs. Lund," said the older woman in a perfectly expressionless voice which, however, managed to convey the impression of displeasure. "You know employees are not supposed to have calls within hours, but I will make an exception. . . ."

And over a span of Happy years
We seem to live again
We seem to hear the plaintive song

The sound of silvery, falling rain
Come dripping from the eaves
A cottage with its wide flung doors
Reveals itself to me;
Our mother's quaint old garden
We never fail to see

By HARRY GRAYSON

DETROIT—Eldon Auker, the most pronounced underhand pitcher since Carl Mays, was warming up.

"Fresh from a softball lot?" someone asked.

"Nope, football injury," replied Del Baker, veteran catcher and coach of the Tigers. Played for Bo McMillin. Hurt his shoulder. Couldn't throw a ball overhanded to save his life. He is lucky though. Hitters see one like him so seldom that he is effective. Got a lot of stuff too."

Football is baseball's scourge. There ought to be a law against kids with baseball talent dying for dear old Backwash."

Baker is the old professor of the Tigers. He managed Beaumont, the Detroit club's Texas league farm, in 1931 and 1932, and prior to that he handled the Fort Worth team, and before that the Oakland Coaster's subsidiary in the Utah-Idaho league.

The Oregon hop grower is one of the finest developers of young players in the business. He might now be the manager of the Tigers had not Frank J. Navin borrowed that $100,000 and purchased Mickey Cochrane.

At Beaumont Baker turned out the phenomenal Schoolboy Rowe and the lesser-known right-hander Hamlin; outfielders Pete Fox and Jo-Jo White and the extra infielders Heinie Seuble and Flea Clinton.

It was Baker's knowledge of these youngsters and his influence over them, especially Rowe, that last season prompted the Detroit front office to bring Baker back to the club for which he formerly caught.

"Yes the football is baseball's scourge," repeated Baker. "In my last four years in the minors, I had 50 football players, a number of them all-Americans, and not one of them amounted to anything."

"Football leaves its marks in the shoulders, hips and knees. Those who play for glory in college, find themselves muscle-bound when they get out in a game in which they could earn a fine living. If their shoulders are not grained cheese, 1/2 cup milk, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons bacon fat, 1/2 teaspoon tabasco sauce.

Salt the boiling water and add barley and rice. Cook until very soft in double boiler. It will take at least two hours. When ready to serve add cheese, milk, paprika, fat and tabasco sauce. Cool enough to melt the cheese. Serve at once.

Sausage and Cereal

One-half cup cracked wheat, 2 cups boiling water, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup sausage, 2 sweet green peppers, 2 onions, 1 tablespoon fat, 1/2 teaspoon powdered sweet herbs.

Cook wheat in boiling salted water until tender. Mince peppers and onions and combine with sausage. Melt fat in frying pan, add meat mixture and brown quickly. Add this to the cooked wheat an hour before removing thereto the following:

SECTION I. Not less than a majority of the members of each House of the General Assembly may enact a law.

SECTION II. None of the rates for property, excise, privilege or personal taxes, now levied shall be increased by the General Assembly except after the approval of the qualified electors voting thereon at an election, or in case of an emergency, by the votes of three-fourths of the members elected to each House of the General Assembly.

SECTION III. Excepting monies raised or collected for educational purposes, highway purposes, to pay Confederate pensions and the just debts of the State, the General Assembly is hereby prohibited from appropriating or expending more than the sum of Two and One-half Million Dollars for all purposes, for any biennial period; provided, the limit herein fixed may be exceeded by the votes of three-fourths of the members elected to each House of the General Assembly.

SECTION IV. In making appropriations for any biennial period, the General Assembly shall first pass the General Appropriation Bill provided for in Section 30 of Article 5 of the Constitution, and no other appropriation bill may be enacted before that shall have been done.

SECTION V. No expense shall be incurred or authorized for either House except by a bill duly passed by both Houses and approved by the Governor.

The provisions of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas in conflict with this Amendment are hereby repealed, so far as they are in conflict herewith, and this Amendment shall be self-executing and shall take and have full effect immediately upon its adoption by the electors of the State.

The above resolution was filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Arkansas on the 30th day of January, 1933.

Each elector may vote for, or against, the above proposed Amendment.

WITNESS MY HAND and Official seal of this office this the 28th day of March, 1934.

Secretary of State.

ers aren't tied up in swinging a bat, they can't throw. If it isn't that it's bad injuries or trick knees that are continually flying out of place.

"At Beaumont, I had an all-American man from Georgia. He did almost everything well, but I couldn't get him to run with his head up for love or money. He slouched off one extra base hit after another. He just ranned that head down there and kept on running until someone tugged him."

Baker named one case after another—players who would have become renowned in baseball, but who were hopelessly handicapped as the result of being belted around in football.

There was Ken Strong, the great New York University back, who went to Detroit and who hit so well for Toronto. He was driven out of baseball by a wrist that was broken in professional football.

But they are few. There is little question that Baker is right. The two games don't mix in any kind of a cocktail shaker.

Let Chevrolet tell its own story of riding and driving comfort

Make the ownership test

THE best way to get at the truth behind the fine things you hear and read about the new Chevrolet, is to get in the car and drive. Take this car, drive it over the same routes, in the same way you drive your present automobile, and let the results you can see and feel tell their own story. You have heard that Knee-Action makes bad roads good, and good roads better. A ride will prove it. You have heard that Chevrolet provides shock-proof steering, Syncro-Mesh gear-shifting, a remarkably flexible 80-horsepower engine, and cable-controlled brakes. A few minutes at the wheel will show you what a difference these advancements make in safety and driving ease. And when the ride is over, and you step out refreshed and ready for more, you will know why so many thousands have found it impossible to return to ordinary driving after an experience like this. That is the Ownership Test—easy, enjoyable, and the most practical way to choose a car.
